

Trade Topics – December 2003

Mike Green is busy gearing up for Sydney 2005 and sent in this letter:

Another year has almost passed, and we at Mayo Healthcare (formerly Viasys Australia) would like to thank everyone for their support throughout the year. We wish everyone a happy and safe Christmas period and look forward to the New Year.

We also look forward to the upcoming ANZSRS meeting in Sydney, and will soon be sending information about the user group forums to be held just prior to the conference. We enjoyed the first one held in Adelaide, and hope all that were able to attend did as well. Please know that we are looking to make this a regular event, so if you have any feedback, please let us know.

Best wishes,

Mayo Healthcare Team

Craig Abud, Niche Medical, reports that they have been working on an upgrade to their web-site of late and that the main page should be completed and on air by the time you read this. Check it out at www.nichemedical.com.au. Craig also provided a listing of their product lines that I will incorporate into a directory that will hopefully be up early next year.

Medtechnica have sent in more information on their Med Graphics products specifically the Profiler Ex

David Kendell, Supervising Inspector of the NSW Standards Laboratory, has provided the following updated information regarding syringe validation.

The NSW Standards Laboratory is able to provide a service which validates your calibration syringe and they will provide a certificate for the syringe accuracy. They are able to tailor the process to individual requirements eg validate total volume only, or validate linearity of volume over a range. Obviously the cost depends on the amount of work involved and prospective users of the service should contact the laboratory directly to determine the cost involved. Turnaround time remains approximately 10 working days.

The Laboratory can be contacted at:

That looks like it for this month. Thanks to those of the Trade who have supported this page during 2003. I am always hoping for more contributions but the page has seen another year out and will hopefully continue to grow from here on. It has been hard work getting people involved but I like to think the news that has been garnered each month has had something of use to someone. I would like to hear how the utility of the service could be improved – what members would find useful and what the Trade would like to see happen on the page. Please take the time to pen me an e-mail.
